

2015

In the Garden

Willard Marwitz

College of Saint Benedict/Saint John's University, wmarwitz@csbsju.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.csbsju.edu/headwaters>

---

Recommended Citation

Marwitz, Willard (2015) "In the Garden," Headwaters: Vol. 28, 150-150.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.csbsju.edu/headwaters/vol28/iss/15>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@CSB/SJU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Headwaters by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@CSB/SJU. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@csbsju.edu.

In the Garden

will marwitz

In the garden:
She calculates Newton's law of physics
As I ponder poetry of Robert Frost—
Both of us are contemplating,
One of us is lost . . .
The other, seeking . . .

She desires grand revelations
To discern the infinite from particle form,
While I, taking time to ponder vagaries,
Allow Nature's truth be born.

We sit within our orchard,
Dissecting as much as can be read and known,
Realizing that the pathway to understanding
Must finally be traversed alone.

She considers velocity of apple falling, falling free—
I am questioning:
Why need plant that apple tree?
Causing human misery— she replies.
Offering sweetness— I oblige.

*Will Marwitz is an Instructor of First-Year Seminar. A book of his poetry, titled Turning the Cup, was published in fall 2010 by North Star Press of Saint Cloud.*