What Really Happens

Oh and yea it is that we have come to know that fiction overcomes all spoken and believed; it can take a given truth and wrap it around your little finger until blood stops flowing to your head.
Fiction erases historical truth and writes some other thing on the last page, until historians shake their heads and shout huzzah and stop the presses.
One day hero and next the goat - a good deed acclaimed but suspicion arises; a saint proclaimed until from your ashes vile thoughts are whispered into eager ears.
You then wake up as a naked statue standing among pigeons in the public square, not as pure as the day you were born.
